

Humor 7-2025

“Do you believe in life after death?” the boss asked one of his employees.

“Yes,” replied the employee.

“That’s OK then,” said the boss.

“Because while you were at your grandmother’s funeral yesterday, she popped in to see you.”

One man’s problem was getting to work on time.

One morning, driving to the office, he came across a turtle in the middle of the road.

He just had to rescue the creature.

It took a few minutes for him to stop the car, grab the turtle, and move it off to the side.

He then rushed on to work.

When he saw the boss at the door, he said, “It’s not my fault, Rich.

There was a turtle in the road.”

Before he could go any further the boss bellowed, “So what-you drove behind it?”

In the department store where a man worked, his boss asked the man to look into hiring several cashiers.

Reading through job applications, the man burst out laughing at one answer.

Next to the prompt “Salary expectations,” the applicant had written a single word: “Yes.”

Nothing tops a plain pizza.

Someone stole a man’s coffee cup.

He’s headed to the police station to look at mug shots.

They said to follow your dreams.
I went back to bed.

Age is not a number.
It's clearly a word.

Tundra by Chad Carpenter

A TV reporter interviewed a 103-year old man thought to be the oldest person in the county.
She asked him what he thought was the greatest invention in his lifetime.
"Oh, easy." He replied.
"The Thermos bottle."
The startled reporter said, "Really? Why?"
"It keeps things hot, don't it?"
"Yes. Yes, it does."
"It keeps things cold, don't it?"
"Yeah, they do."
"Right" the old man said. "How does it know?"

A dog walks into an employment agency and, in perfect English, says, “I need a job.”

Stunned, the receptionist replies, “You’re a talking dog! This is incredible! With a talent like that, you could easily land a job with the circus!”

The dog tilted his head, confused.

“The circus?” he asks.

“Why would they need an architect?”

Because he was processing his first accident report at the transport company where he worked, a man was being particularly attentive.

The driver had hit a deer on the highway, and the result was a severely damaged hood and fender.

His serious mood was broken, however, when he reached the section of the report that asked, “Speed of other vehicle?”

The driver had put “Full gallop.”

A big challenge of running a small business is dealing with employees’ requests for time off.

One morning an employee said, “I need to leave early tomorrow.”

Later that same day, he followed up with, “Looks like I’ll be coming in late tomorrow, but if my coming in late runs into my leaving early, then I won’t be in at all.”

People can’t drive you crazy if you don’t give them the keys.

Q: How can you hide an elephant in a cherry tree?

A: Paint it’s toes red.

Q: When does a joke become a dad joke?

A: When it becomes apparent.

To the thief who stole my glasses.

I will find you, I have contacts.

A man and his wife were working at a furniture store liquidation sale. They were accepting fairly low bids, but one man proved a particularly tough customer.

He pointed to a couch that originally cost $1,000, marked down to $300.

“I’ll give you $20 for it,” he said.

“Sir,” the wife replied calmly.

“We are going out of business, not out of our minds.”

When a man’s printer’s type began to grow faint, he called a local repair shop, where a friendly employee informed the man that the printer probably needed only to be cleaned.

Because the store charged $50 for such cleanings, the employee told the man, he might be better off reading the manual and trying the job himself. Pleasantly surprised by the employee’s candor, the man asked, “Does your boss know that you discourage business?”

“Actually it’s my boss’s idea,” the employee replied sheepishly.

“We usually make more money on repairs if we let people try to fix things themselves first.”

A man worked in a small government office, and as part of the daily routine he takes orders for doughnuts and picks them up on his morning run to the post office.

A new employee looked bemused as the man took orders for CCRs, GOFs and POFs-known to bakery staff as chocolate-covered raised, glazed old-fashioned and plain old-fashioned.

When it was the new employee’s turn to order, she laughed and said, “You know you work in a government office when even the doughnuts have acronyms

A man once had a boss tell him, “Don’t dress for the job you have; dress for the job you want.”

The man showed up the next day in a Cubs uniform.

Spotted on the bottom of a menu in Fort Bragg, Ca.:

“These items may or may not be available at all times and sometimes not at all and other times all the time.”

From a classified ad in the Danbury, Conn., News-times:

“Cobra cordless phone. Needs new cord.”

Spotted on a restaurant coupon: “Buy one hot dog for the price of two and receive a second hot dog absolutely free.”

Spotted in the police-beat section of the St. Louis Sanibal Islander:

“A woman lost her necklace and her charm while shopping March 12.”

Tundra by Chad Carpenter